Introduction

Literature is the reflection about life, thought, feeling, behavior, and attitude of human being. According to Bennet and Royle (2004: 35), “Literature is the kind of writing which most persistently and most provocatively engages with the uncanny aspects of experience, thought and feeling”. Also, according to Abrams (2009:226), “Novel is applied to a great variety of writings that have in common only the attribute of being extended works of fiction written in prose”. In this research the writer prefers choosing Arthur Golden's novel Memoirs of a Geisha to be analyzed because it is an interesting novel which shows about the life of woman who tries to survive in her life while taking a setting in Japan, as Geisha is the people that undergoing mizuage and erikae rituals as a part of culture comes from the ancestor habitual actions and beliefs.

The problems that lie behind the concern of the study are focused on two main questions: (1) What kinds of Japanese rituals of a new Geisha in Arthur Golden's novel Memoirs of a Geisha? and (2) What are the conflicts faced by Sayuri during the rituals of a new Geisha in Arthur Golden's novel Memoirs of a Geisha and what are the solutions? While the study itself is focused on Japanese rituals of a new Geisha undergone by Sayuri and limited to the Japanese rituals that is portayed by Arthur Golden in the novel Memoirs of a Geisha.

The findings revealed in this study could be a significant contribution to students and lecturers of English Department of University of Muhammadiyah Malang, also for further researcher. Theoretically, this study is expressed to develop and give description about Japanese rituals of a new Geisha found in the novel Memoirs of a Geisha. The findings of the literature study should also be a referential data for the next researcher in the close area of research, and for readers who want to study and share their knowledge to others about Japanese rituals.

Literature

According to Klarer (2004), “Literary work is divided into some types of genres literature; fiction, poetry, drama, and movie”. Novel is included into fiction as novel is a kind of literature. According to Abrams (2009: 226), “Novel is applied to a great variety of writings that have in common only the attribute of being extended works of fiction written in prose”.

There are some elements of novel namely character, characterization, plot, setting, point of view, theme and conflict. According to Kennedy (in Koesnosoebroto 1988: 65), “The character is usually but not always a person but it can be an animal or something”. Characterization is the art of creating characters for a narrative. Abrams (2009:43) states that:

A broad distinction is frequently made between alternative methods for characterizing (that is, establishing the distinctive character of the persons in a narrative: showing and telling. In showing (also called “the dramatic method”), the author simply presents the characters talking and acting, and leaves it entirely up to the reader to infer the movies and dispositions that lie behind what they say and do. From the explanation above, it can be conclude that characterization is the author’s way to deliver about the characteristic of a character to the reader.

Plot has a beginning, middle, and an end and it is related from the first until the end. Setting is where the story is set. According to Abrams (2009: 330), “Setting is the general locale, historical time, and social circumstances in which its action occurs. According to Klarer (2004: 20), “The term point of view, or narrative perspective, characterizes the way in which a text presents persons, events, and settings. According to DiYanni (2002: 85), “Them is its idea or point (formulated a generalization)”. It means theme is the central idea or meaning of a story. According to Koesnosoebroto (1988), there are three kinds of conflicts. They are: psychological conflict or well-known as internal conflict, is a conflict between people and themselves. Physical conflict is a conflict which is related with the nature around the characters. It usually occurs between the characters and the weather, the object, and the activities. Social conflict is a conflict happens between the characters. Most of social conflict happens because misunderstanding between characters and causes different perceptions. From three kinds of conflicts above, it can be categorized into two types of conflict, external and internal conflict.

The Solution of Conflicts
The ability to successfully manage and resolve conflict depends on skills to resolve it. According to Segal (2009) there are four skills to resolve conflict. They are:

a. Quickly relieve stress
The capacity to remain relaxed and focused in tense situation is a vital aspect of conflict resolution. If people did not know how to stay centered and in control, people may become emotionally overwhelmed in challenging situations.

b. Recognizing and managing emotion Emotional awareness is the key to understanding himself or herself and others. If people did not know how he or she feels or why he or she feels that way, he or she would not be able to communicate effectively or smooth over disagreements.

c. Improving nonverbal communication skills
The most important information exchanged during conflicts and arguments is often communicated nonverbally. “Simply nonverbal signals such as a calm tone of voice, a reassuring touch, or a concerned facial expression can go a long way toward defusing a heated exchange (Segal, 2009).”

d. Using Humor and playing to deal with challenges

“Humor can help people say things that might otherwise be difficult to express without creating a flap (Segal, 2009).” However, it's important that people laugh with the other person, not at them.

Japanese Culture

According to Rice (2004: 19), “Japanese culture is well-known with its unique features, which to a certain degree is influenced by its geographical conditions. As an archipelago country separated from the Asian continent, their geographical isolation create their culture has unique characteristics”. One of the characteristics discussed in this study is the Geisha. According to Johnston (2005: 38) geisha was raised from the earliest kabuki performers of the late sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries. As one of traditional emblems of Japanese culture, they must be able to master some traditional Japanese arts such as classical dance, traditional song and musical instruments and tea ceremony. By defining ritual as a part of culture, Sims and Stephens (2005: 95) state that ritual is a mark to initiate someone to become a member of certain group. They state the following:

Rituals are repeated, habitual actions, but are more purposeful than custom; rituals are frequently highly organized and controlled, often mean to indicate or announce membership in a group. Most rituals bring together many types of folklore: verbal, such as chants, recitations, poems or songs; customary, such as gestures, dances or movements; and material, such as food, book, awards, clothing and costumes.

Bell (2009: 94) mentions that there are six categories of ritual. They are: rites of passage, calendrical rites, rites of exchange, rites of affliction, rites of feasting, fasting, and festival, and political rituals. According to Bell (2009: 94), “Rites of passage are ceremonies that accompany and dramatize such major events as birth, coming-of-age initiations for boys and girls, marriage, and death. Sometimes called "life-crisis" or "life-cycle" rites, they culturally mark a person's transition from one stage of social life to another.

Research Methodology

The research design of this study is qualitative research design because this study does not present the data in numeric analysis, but in the form of words. The technique that used to collect the data in this research was library research. The finding of this study was described in narrative form as the writer used the objective approach because it describes the literary works itself. It is not necessary for the writer to study the author's life. The object of this study is "Memoirs of a Geisha" written by the novelist Arthur Golden and focused on the Japanese rituals that Sayuri underwent as a new Geisha.
