Introduction
Islamic Education plays one of the most important role in a country because a progress or a collapse of a country is based on the stands of the education of the society. One of educational method that contributes to the progress of Islamic Education is the basic Islamic model, which becomes the catalyst that is highly valuable to a nation’s inspiration, because by implementing good religious education will bring to better understanding and practice of religion.

Reflect back to the ways of traditional Islamic teaching methodology, perhaps it will bring us to the memory of the scholar’s face, wearing “skull hat”, with a long cane on one of his hand or we will smile when we remember how our friends laughed at us, when we could not recognize a letter. Then we also recalled a madrasah system which we followed whatever teacher has read, and copy blindly what was written at the board. But that is all now a memory in the past for every student that was in the ‘60s and ‘70s mosque madrasah in Singapore.

Education system in era 2020 might be more and advanced where with one “touch” all information will be displayed. It is therefore, expected that the advanced state of education system in Singapore, Islamic Religious Council of Singapore (Muis, 2004) put in much effort to develop Singapore Islamic Education System. Better known as the aL.I.V.E (Learning Islamic Values Everyday) curriculum, it combines the best of Islamic values education with contemporary teaching methods to make learning Islam an enriching experience. Hence, the students now not only learn the subject taught in the previous curriculum such as Aqidah & Fiqh (Islamic Practices), Tauhid (Islamic Belief), Sirah (Life stories of Prophet Muhammad) and Akhlak (Moral and Character Development), but are also given the opportunity to experience and explore the issues in the content of real-life situations. This approach enables them to internalize and appreciate the relevance of Islam to their everyday lives.

The increasing number of Muslim foreign maids, foreign workers from Bangladesh, overseas Muslim students and expatriates working in Singapore has added to the cultural diversity and heterogeneous practices of Islam within the Muslim community. To remain Islamic Education relevant to all Muslim in Singapore, regardless of their race and nationalities thus one of the recommendations was the adoption of the aL.I.V.E. programme as the baseline curriculum for Mosque Madrasahs in Singapore as mosque are a strategic institution for Islamic learning and social development for Muslim in Singapore.

Mosque History and Leadership

In Singapore, Muis has re-instructed the mosque leadership to ensure that mosque remain the main provider of Islamic learning to the community as leadership is the key factor in implementing the mosque remodeling agenda. Mosque today is led by competent leaders and able staff members. There is now structured training to envision and up skill mosque leaders. Mosque is also employing professionals for their day to day running, under the oversight of the management Boards. Now there are 69 mosques in Singapore together with older mosque (kampong mosque) but only 23 mosques have been built so far under the Mosque Building Fund (MBF). The Mosque Building Fund (MBF) was established in 1975 as a means of gathering funds for the building of mosques in new public housing estates. After the formation of the Mendaki Foundation in 1984, the MBF was integrated with the Mendaki Fund and renamed the Mosque Building and Mendaki Fund (MBMF). Muslims voluntarily contribute to this fund by having a fixed amount deducted from their salary every month.

Mosques have not only imparted knowledge about Islam to develop faithful, practicing and knowledgeable community of believers. They have also imparted social ethos that are necessary to make Muslim live as good members of a multi religious society and good citizens of a secular state.

Mosque today has created more “space” for youth. Youth have greater say in how the mosques are being run as more of them sit on the Management Boards. Mosque today are also more inviting to families. They even catered for family prayer space in the main prayer hall. Programs meant for the whole family are now more popular. Family-based events like marriage solemnization can now be held in the mosques. More importantly, mosques leaders at Mosque Convention 2005 agreed to make mosques important nodes that actively engage other nodes within the grid.
Most of the mosque in Singapore is no longer merely serving as a place of worship for the muslim public but was facilitate with programmes through part-time Islamic education for young children and youth attending national schools from Monday to Friday to learn Islamic knowledge on weekends either on Saturday or Sunday. Even though there are 69 mosques in Singapore, only 32 mosques providing part-time madrasah and only 11 mosques has succeeded providing part-time everyday either in the morning or afternoon session for children attending national schools. Although the teaching approach is still using traditional madrasah model but latest teaching tools and method were used to impart the knowledge and malay language as the medium for teacher to deliver the lesson.

Mosque Madrasah Education System

The mosque madrasah education system at that period aimed at teaching children and youth the reading of the Holy Quran, practice “solat” and Islamic beliefs based on expectation of the parents sending the children to the mosque madrasah. This madrasah system had been practiced in the early days of Islamic education known as “khuttab system” but does not practice “halaqah” system due to space constrains in the mosque that might disturb the muslim public doing their prayer.

In accordance with awareness of seeking of Islamic knowledge in muslim community in Singapore, therefore Islamic education in mosque madrasah had received overwhelming respond from the muslim community. Firstly, because all six full-time madrasah such as Madrasah Al-sagof, Madrasah al Junied, Madrasah al Maarif, Madrasah Wak Tanjung, Madrasah al-Irsyad and Jamiyah Rabbithah in Singapore are closed for registration due to overwhelming demand from Muslim community. Secondly, perhaps the trend or mindset of some muslim community in Singapore choose to send their children to national school on weekdays and go to madrasah on weekends. Hence, mosque madrasah has become their second option for their children to learn Islamic knowledge.

Thus, to ensure mosques today are well organized by mosque leader, Muis has set-up very strict appointment criteria for amongst Muslim who would like to be appointed as a Board member on a mosque. Application is open to all Muslim community in Singapore through advertisement in the newspaper or applicants can either obtain the application forms at the reception counters in the mosque or Muis. Part of the appointment criteria that are of sound moral and religious character, has not been convicted of a criminal offence and are not adjudicated a bankrupt. Muis after a thorough process of investigation and consultation may terminate the appointment of any member if his conduct, whether in connection with the duties of such appointment or otherwise bring discredit upon the mosque, the Board, Muis or Islam.

Mosques in Singapore have, indeed, evolved over the years from being just a place of worship for Muslims to become an important socio-religious institution in the multi-cultural and religious landscapes of nation-building in Singapore. Therefore, mosque should be further developed to qualify as active nodes within the national grid of community development and services. In Mosque Convention 2005, mosques need to reshape content to focus on Islamic Learning in mosque madrasah.

Efforts at remodeling mosques need to take into account emerging trends and other environmental forces that shape the landscape upon which the institution operates. The shaping of the remodeled mosques, in turn, must reflect the agenda of change and continuity facing the community. Numerous discussions were held at various platforms involving MMB members, mosque key staff, mosque religious officer and volunteers. Many ideas were gathered and feedback received. Based on inputs and ideas, Muis has decided to revamp the mosque madrasah education system.

aL.I.V.E Curriculum

A new aL.I.V.E. (Learning Islamic Value Everyday) curriculum had been introduced in all mosque madrasah that teach “traditional Islam” in interactive ways that make our young love Islam as their way of life.

The aL.I.V.E. programme are being developed by the Islamic Council of Singapore (Muis) as part of its continuous improvement efforts towards excellence in structured part-time Islamic Education for the young.

As in MUIS Programme Guide (2008), aL.I.V.E seeks to provide a national baseline Islamic Education curriculum for all young Muslim, 5 to 24 years old to help them face life’s challenges and remain true to their Muslim identity in a multi religious, multi ethnic society and global world. It is designed specially to be appealing, developmentally-appropriate and relevant to kids, tweens, teens and youth, the aL.I.V.E. programmes aim to inspire students to continue Learning Islamic Values Everyday.

Multi-sensory teaching methods are used to make lessons more dynamic and interesting. In aL.I.V.E, teachers facilitate the learning of Islamic values in an interactive manner by organizing special themed activities and projects, engaging students through lively discussion, and encouraging them to critically reflect on the lessons they have learnt.

Students study the tenets of their Islamic faith as well as learn to apply them in their daily lives. This nurturing environment helps them to grow in confidence and develop a more positive self-esteem. They are four programmes available:

1. KIDS aL.I.V.E  :  AGES 5 – 8 years old
2. TWEENS aL.I.V.E  :  AGES 9 -12 years old
3. TEENS aL.I.V.E  :  AGES 13 -15 years old
4. YOUTH aL.I.V.E  :  AGES 17 – 24 years old

The aL.I.V.E. programmes are modular thus it can be delivered through weekly Academic Year or Holiday Programme during school vacation. The core values and principles of aL.I.V.E is thinking, watching and doing. aL.I.V.E. programmes seek to inculcate values through modeling so children can see them being practiced. Teachers will also facilitate these values by providing opportunities for the children to personally engage in the moral process. This is the intuitive instructional model proposed by the Quran and followed by the earlier generation of Muslim scholars.

An active learner consistently looks for knowledge and information. In aL.I.V.E. programme, the child will be shown how to view the Quran as a living, dynamic and relevant source of knowledge for them to consistently discover. Students are encouraged to wonder, plan, investigate, discover, reflect, share and act. At the end of the programme student will understand that a good Muslim in one of who is firm in his/her belief, consistent in practice and exemplary in character. Student is taught Beliefs, Duties and Responsibilities, Virtues, Prohibited, Manner, Feeling, Attitudes, Life and Quranic Literacy Skills.

A young Muslim who understands his/her religion is better prepared to meet challenges. To strengthen their resolve, the aL.I.V.E programmes cover a range of topics from knowing God and Islam becoming a moral and caring person, interacting with others, facing challenges, and how to lead and make a difference.

To nurture a love for learning Islam, lesson is conducted in an engaging manner to keep interest level high. aL.I.V.E. teaching approach uses meaningful, value based, interactive method to aid active learning and participation.

Useful and interesting discussion topics help students to hone their thinking skills, deepen their knowledge and make real-world connections. This is turn improves their inter-personal communication skills with family, friends and strangers.

Students are accessed via a multiple assessment approach- encompassing different elements a child may experience both in and out of class thus reflecting his/her abilities and knowledge more accurately. Approaches include: organization of materials, consideration of alternatives, quality of content and process, elaborated communication, connection to society and the world, audience, and beyond the classroom.

The aL.I.V.E. curriculum aims to produce Muslim who are:

1. Moral individuals, responsible towards their Creator and His Creation.
2. Imbibed with Taqwa, self-monitored (muraqabah) and conscientiousness.
3. Active and responsible partners in human endeavors, participating in community and nation building, and as global citizens.
4. Able to explain and communicate with others the teachings of Islam in an informed, logical manner and with wisdom.
5. Practicing Muslim, committed to the betterment of human life.

The aL.I.V.E. programme adopt a thematic approach to learning. Different themes appropriate to the different levels are being developed and delivered. The subject on Aqidah and Fiqh are presented as “Faith & Practices”, akhlaq as “Character & Life Skills”, Sirah and Tarikh as “Social & Civilization Islam” while Iqra’ & quran reading under “Quranic Literacy”.

Depending on the age, the programmes, the module and topics, the four areas may be given different emphasis. For example, more emphasis are given on Quranic Literacy in the Kids & Tweens aL.I.V.E. programme.

According to MUIS (2009), over the last 3 years Muis has been conducting an annual survey to gauge public awareness and acceptance of the aL.I.V.E programme. The results continue to show an upward trend. Since the first survey in 2007, awareness of aL.I.V.E programme among parents with children aged 5 to 14 years old has increased from 38% to 62%. The percentage was even higher among youth aged 15 to 24 years old, with the awareness level increasing by more than twofold from 25% in 2007 to 64% in 2009. From the same survey, it is also heartening to note that more than 90% of parents and youths surveyed gave “Good” or “Excellent” rating when asked how well the aL.I.V.E. Centers. About 85% gave a rating of “Good” or “Excellent”.

The efforts by the various stakeholders including mosque, aL.I.V.E. centre and teachers, aL.I.V.E. ambassadors and Muis Youth Development Officers in promoting and conducting the programme continues to give positive result. Even though English language as the medium for teacher to deliver the lesson, it does not affect teacher’s performance, but at the same time Muis must seek out and address concerns and challenges so that the quality of lesson delivery and implementation standards continue to be improved. One of the key areas to explore further is teacher training and development as well an integrated training and mentoring programme for teacher. A part of the quality assurance and improvement initiatives. Muis has embarked on a validation exercise where local and international expert are engaged to provide an independent review of the aL.I.V.E. programme to ensure that Singapore Islamic Education System is based on foundations which are noted in the best of Islamic tradition to use at Mosque Madrasah Education System.

aL.I.V.E Journey Guid

In aL.I.V.E. Journey Guide (2008), there are six focus areas to learning, living & loving Islam: (1) being responsible, (2) praying five times daily, (3) reading the Quran daily, (4) helping others in need, (5) trusting Allah always, (6) being polite to parents & elders. The roadmap of aL.I.V.E. Journey Guide starts from; An Early Start to Islam; Exploring, Discovering & Learning Islam, Experiential Learning, Holistic, Thematic, Thinking, Watching & Doing, Discover how Islam guides you through every step of your life, Spirit of Inquiry & Discovery, Spiritual & Character Education and end with Empowering Tomorrow’s Leaders with Islam.

Conclusion

In spite of the good progress made, it is acknowledged that there are areas that can do better. Mosques must play an active role in showcasing the desire for excellence in the Islamic Education. We believe that the exercise will help better chart progress in develop a credible part-time Islamic Education system in Singapore. The development and sustainability of a rigorous, well-balanced part-time Islamic Education System in Madrasah Mosque for young depends not just on Muis but on all mosques leader. Thus all aL.I.V.E centres and partners to continue efforts to make the Singapore Islamic Education System widely available and well-delivered for the benefit of rooted in Islam and is also line with the needs and aspiration of students. With that an integrated approach and firm commitments from all stakeholders to ensure the success of religious education will help to achieve the aspiration to build a confident Singapore Muslim Community of Excellence.

The efforts to reshape the content of Islamic learning have come to fruition with implementation of the aL.I.V.E curriculum. All 35 mosques that have madrasah now run the aL.I.V.E. programme, with an addition seven mosques running it as a school holiday. The aL.I.V.E. programme touches all level; from children to youths, and to date, some 400 aL.I.V.E. teachers have been trained to teach around 11,000 students. This is a big increase from a mere 4,5000 student doing aL.I.V.E. programme in 2007. Funding support was also given to needy children to attend the programme. In all, there is good support and enthusiasm for aL.I.V.E., which delivers Islamic Learning in a contextual and interactive manner, and mosque today can pride themselves for drawing students to be enriched with this curriculum and thereby thriving in to a new atmosphere of Islamic learning that will shape the minds of coming generation.

Ultimately, a community that places a high premium on learning is a community that will always be finding a new ways of doing thing and improving is state of affairs. And it is not just about doing things well to our satisfaction but also about by being objective by ensuring that the way we to do things meets international benchmarks and standards.
