PUBLICATION ETHICS

IJOTA (Indonesian Journal of Tropical Aquatic) is a scientific journal that discusses the results of research in science, technology, and marine fisheries. It is important to agree the standards of ethical behavior for all of the participant in this published journal includes the author, the journal editor, the peer review, and also the publisher. Department of Aquaculture, University of Muhammadiyah Malang as the publisher of this Journal, takes its duties of guardianship over all stages of publishing extremely seriously and we recognize our ethical and other responsibilities. We are committed to ensuring that advertising, reprint or additional commercial revenue has no impact or influence on editorial decisions. In addition, the Department of Fisheries, University of Muhammadiyah Malang and Editorial Board will assist in communications with other journals and/or publishers where this is useful and necessary.

For Editors

1. The editor decide which submitted articles should be published in IJOTA (Indonesian Journal of Tropical Aquatic).
2. An editor should evaluate manuscripts for their intellectual content without regard to race, gender, sexual orientation, religious belief, ethnic origin, citizenship, or political philosophy of the authors.
3. The editor and any editorial staff must not disclose any information about a submitted manuscript to anyone other than the corresponding author, reviewers, potential reviewers, other editorial advisers, and the publisher, as appropriate.
4. An editor has to evaluate the manuscript objectively for publication, judging each on its quality without looking to nationality, ethnicity, political beliefs, race, religion, gender, seniority, or institutional affiliation of the authors. He/she should decline his/her assignment when there is a potential for conflict of interest.
5. Editors should recuse themselves (i.e., should ask a co-editor, associate editor or another member of the editorial board instead to review and consider) from considering manuscripts in which they have conflicts of interest resulting from competitive, collaborative, or other relationships or connections with any of the authors, companies, or (possibly) institutions connected to the papers.
6. Editors should require all contributors to disclose relevant competing interests and publish corrections if competing interests are revealed after publication.
7. An editor should take reasonably responsive measures when ethical complaints have been presented concerning a submitted manuscript or published paper, in conjunction with the publisher (or society).

For Reviewers

1. Peer review assists the editor in making editorial decisions and through the editorial communications with the author may also assist the author in improving the paper.
2. Any selected referee who feels unqualified to review the research reported in a manuscript or knows that its prompt review will be impossible should notify the editor and excuse himself from the review process.
3. Any manuscripts received for review must be treated as confidential documents. They must not be shown to or discussed with others except as authorized by the editor.
4. Reviews should be conducted objectively. Personal criticism of the author is inappropriate. Referees should express their views clearly with supporting arguments.
5. Reviewers should identify relevant published work that has not been cited by the authors.

For Authors

1. Authors of reports of original research should present an accurate account of the work performed as well as an objective discussion of its significance.
2. Authors may be asked to provide the raw data in connection with a paper for editorial review, and should be prepared to provide public access such as data, if practicable, and should, in any event, be prepared to retain such data for a reasonable time after publication.
3. The authors should ensure that they have written entirely original works, and if the authors have used the work and/or words of others that has been appropriately cited or quoted.
4. An author should not, in general, publish manuscripts describing essentially the same research in more than one journal or primary publication.
5. Authors should cite publications that have been influential in determining the nature of the reported work.
6. Authorship should be limited to those who have made a significant contribution to the conception, design, execution, or interpretation of the reported study.
7. All authors should disclose in their manuscript any financial or other substantive conflicts of interest that might influence the results or interpretation of their paper.
8. When an author discovers a significant error or inaccuracy in his/her published work, the author should promptly notify the journal editor or publisher and cooperate with the editor to retract or correct the paper.
9. If the editor or the publisher find a significant error, the author should retract or correct the paper or provide evidence to the editor of the correctness of the original paper.
